Úloha 1

Man: I can't find my passport!

Woman: Here! I hope we didn't forget to close the windows.

Man: I'm sure I closed them.

Woman: I feel nervous. Have we packed everything?

Man: Look, Marta! Our passports, our tickets, our hotel vouchers... This is all we need for the next 2 weeks.

Woman: All right. We have everything we need, so let's check in our bags.

Man: Good idea. Oh no, look at the board – our flight is delayed. 30 more minutes to wait!

You will hear 5 dialogues. For each dialogue, choose the correct answer.

The man and the woman are

- at an airport.
- at the market.
- at a police station.
- in a hotel room.

Úloha 2

Derek: Excuse me, Mr. Stone, could I ask you about something, please?

Geography teacher: Yes, Derek. Of course.

Derek: Hmm...

Geography teacher: What's the problem, Derek?

Derek: Mr. Stone, I enjoy working on projects...

Geography teacher: I know! Your and Emily's projects are almost always the best ones.

Derek: Thank you, Mr. Stone. My grandfather sometimes helps me, he's been to a lot of countries and knows interesting things about them. He collects maps too.

Geography teacher: Your grandfather is a great man!

Derek: Yes, he is. But... the new project should be about the sky in summer. I'm not sure if I can do the project. The topic is not easy... Could I write about something different, for example, about Antarctica?

Geography teacher: Look, Derek, you can't write about Antarctica, because everything is on the Internet today. Watching stars at night, taking pictures of the sky and thinking about space is more difficult but, I hope, more interesting too. Don't worry!

Hear and choose the correct answer.

Derek talks to his geography teacher because

- he has lost a map.
- he doesn't want to do his project with Emily.
- he wants to change the topic of his project.
- he can't find his project.

Úloha 3

Diana: Mum, what clothes would you put on for a garden party with your friends?

Mother: For a garden party with my friends? Well, nothing formal... I have never thought about that much, Diana. Why are you asking?

Diana: There'll be a competition in the shopping centre.

Mother: About fashion?

Diana: Yes, about fashion but more about your taste in clothes. I mean if you know what clothes make you attractive or what matches a blue jacket and so on.

Mother: Will they ask you questions?

Diana: No. This competition is very practical. They will say, for example, a job interview or a golf match and we'll have to find the best clothes for a job interview or a golf match and put them on. Experts on fashion will give us points. There's a time limit too.

Mother: Hmm, interesting...

Diana: Of course, we can lose points if we choose wrong colours, something that doesn't fit or something not right for a situation.

Mother: Well, I think it's very useful to know what clothes to wear in different situations.

Diana: So do I.

Hear and choose the correct answer.

In the competition Diana has to

- choose the right clothes.
- make interesting clothes.
- be a model in a fashion show.
- answer questions about fashion.

Úloha 4

Journalist: Miranda, have you always wanted to guide visitors in a castle?

Miranda: Actually, I've never thought about that. Both my parents are guides, I was born here and this castle has been my home for 19 years.

Journalist: That sounds romantic! Most people can't spend their childhood in a castle...

Miranda: Yes, and they sometimes believe the only thing I do is walk around in a long dress... But... living in a castle is not romantic today, at least not for me. I am not a princess and it is not my castle. I only live and work here. And... I often think living in a modern house in the city centre would be better. Somewhere close to restaurants and cinemas...

Journalist: But you like your job, don't you?

Miranda: Yes, I do! I like it because every day I can learn something new about the past. A guide must be interested in history and read a lot about it! Well, it's not easy to be a guide, we work all year round. In winter the castle is closed but we work hard to get it ready for the new season, which starts in April.

Journalist: How do you attract visitors?

Miranda: Fortunately, we have enough visitors because this castle is quite famous. Anyway, we always try to offer something special to them. For example, it's possible to see this castle at night, which is very exciting for children. Or you can enjoy a big dinner with food typical of the 16th century and many other things.

Journalist: Miranda, I think I know what I will be doing next weekend!

Hear and choose the correct answer.

Miranda likes her job because she

- enjoys night tours with children.
- learns about history.
- lives in a famous castle.
- works only 6 months of the year.

Úloha 5

Daisy: Have you seen my book, Mark? I've been looking for it since yesterday.

Mark: Is this the book you're looking for? I found it next to the bath, Daisy.

Daisy: Oh, I left it in the bathroom!

Mark: What sort of book is that? All About Names...

Daisy: There are over one thousand names in the book. It tells you what your name means.

Mark: Daisy means a daisy, I don't have to read any book to know that your name comes from a flower.

Daisy: If you read the book, you will see that it's not true! My name means day's eye, the Sun!

Mark: Great! So your parents chose this name for you because it means the Sun?

Daisy: No. My parents are... practical. My mother says our lives are easier if our names are memorable.

Mark: Memorable?!!

Daisy: Yes, if our names are not difficult to remember and people don't have to ask us three times: Sorry, what's your name? Everyone remembers my name very quickly, so my mother chose well, I think. She also says that our name is important for success in life.

Mark: You're right! Daisy Moss – the top model, for example. Her first name as well as her surname is short and easy to learn. She isn't as successful as 15 years ago but she's still a star. I love her talk show!

Hear and choose the correct answer.

The girl is called Daisy

- because this name is easy to remember.
- after Daisy Moss, a top model in the 1990's.
- because it is her mother's favourite flower.
- because it means the Sun.

Úloha 6

Walt Disney was born on 5th December 1901 in Chicago, in the state of Illinois, in the USA. His father was a farmer and his mother was a housewife. He had three brothers and one sister: Roy, Raymond, Herbert and Ruth. At the age of five his family moved to Missouri. His father bought a farm there. Walt liked drawing very much and he drew everything he saw around the farm. Later the family moved to Kansas City. Walt started to go to Saturday classes at the Kansas City Art Institute. During World War I he worked as an ambulance driver in France. After the war he decided to get a job in an art business. He made advertisements for newspapers and magazines. Soon after, he and his brother Roy started their own company and The Disney Studio produced their first cartoons Alice Comedies. Two years later he got married. He had an elder daughter named Diane and a younger one Sharon. In 1934 Disney made his first film. Most of his characters such as Mickey Mouse, Pluto, Pinocchio or Cinderella are parts of every child's life. His first theme park, Disneyland, was opened in July 1955 in southern California. Walt Disney died in 1966. The first Disneyland outside the United States was opened in Japan in 1983. You can also visit the European Disney theme park in France.

There's Something About Chocolate Milk or bitter. Dark or white. A hot drink or a bar. Always a big pleasure of life. Chocolate.

Chocolate is one of the most popular products people can make. When we eat chocolate, we usually feel happy. That's why we remember the moments when we were eating chocolate as positive and we look forward to eating it next time. People who are not chocolate lovers sometimes buy chocolate too, because it is a present that makes almost everyone pleased.

Chocolate was important centuries ago. For example, the Aztecs used cocoa beans to make chocolate and also to pay for other products. Of course, there is a big difference between the chocolate made by the Aztecs and the chocolate we buy in supermarkets. The Aztecs knew chocolate only as a cold drink, which was not sweet at all. Today we can choose between dark, milk or white chocolate in many different forms.

It is interesting that the same kind of chocolate is not always the same, because different countries have different laws. For example, in the Czech Republic milk chocolate must have over 25% of cocoa, but in Great Britain only over 20%. Opinions of white chocolate are different, too. In some countries white chocolate is not called chocolate because there is no cocoa, only cocoa butter in it.

Everybody knows that too much chocolate is unhealthy. Dogs or cats can die if they eat only very little chocolate. Theobromine, a substance found in chocolate, makes people active and happy, but it is very dangerous for most animals. In the past, people gave chocolate (and theobromine) to race horses to make them run more quickly. Fortunately, giving theobromine to them is against the law today.

Chocolate is a topic of books and films, too. Charlie and the Chocolate Factory, a film adaptation of the book by Roald Dahl, was a very successful film, nominated for an Oscar in 2006.

The most important day for chocolate is 13th September. It's the International Chocolate Day. If you decide to have a chocolate party on this day, remember that chocolate is a special kind of food and it is good for your health only if you don't eat it too much.

Happy people eat more chocolate.
